

Emails: Fauci Was Warned That Covid Was Likely "Engineered" at Wuhan Lab, But Covered It Up

I don't see how he avoids prison.

National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease head Dr. Anthony Fauci and several other top scientists were warned that COVID-19 could have been created by gain-of-function research in early 2020, according to email transcriptions released Tuesday by Republicans on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee.

Two scientists, Michael Farzan of the Scripps Research Institute and Robert Garry of Tulane University, noted properties of the virus that they believed pointed to enhanced transmissibility stemming from gain-of-function research. The opinions of both men were provided to Fauci, then-National Institutes of Health head Francis Collins, and then-NIH Principal Deputy Director Lawrence Tabak in an email from researcher Jeremy Farrar sent on Jan. 31, 2020. The existence of the emails was first revealed by BuzzFeed News in June 2021, but they were released with significant redactions. Due to classification rules, the emails could only be viewed by the Republican committee members and staff, who could then take notes and transcriptions in a classified setting.

BREAKING

We've released never before seen emails showing Dr. Fauci may have concealed information about #COVID19 originating from the Wuhan lab & intentionally downplayed the lab leak theory.

@RepJamesComer & @Jim_Jordan want Fauci under oath. Time for answers. 1/2 🖱️ pic.twitter.com/p8alBJ3nom
-- Oversight Committee Republicans (@GOPoversight) January 11, 2022

Farzan was "bothered by" SARS-CoV-2's furin cleavage site, which he viewed as "highly unlikely" to have been created in "an event outside the lab," according to the transcriptions. The existence of a furin cleavage site, which enables the virus to become more transmissible, has been pointed to by several proponents of the lab leak theory, since the two closest known relatives of SARS-CoV-2, RaTG13 and BANAL-236, do not have the site. Farzan claimed that a likely scenario for the creation of the furin cleavage site was the "passage [of] SARS -live CoVs in tissue culture on human cell lines (under BSL-2) for an extended period of time."

In other words, gain-of-function research on humanized mice.

Garry noted the similarities between SARS-CoV-2 and RaTG13, then the closest known relative to SARS-CoV-2, which was discovered in a cave in Yunnan Province in 2013. The protein sequence would "all have to be added at the exact same time to gain" the enhanced transmissibility, he wrote, adding, "I just can't figure out how this gets accomplished in nature."

"Of course, in the lab it would be easy to generate" the missing protein sequence that separates SARS-CoV-2 from RaTG13, Garry noted.

Garry later downplayed the possibility of the lab leak hypothesis, telling the Daily Caller News Foundation in June 2021 that there was no evidence to support the theory.

Fauci, Collins, and Tabak would also go on to blast the lab leak hypothesis as a "very destructive conspiracy" theory, after Fox News' Bret Baier reported on concerns within the U.S. government that COVID-19 originated at WIV. While

Collins looked for ways to "put down" the lab leak hypothesis, Fauci derided it as "a shiny object that will go away in times [sic]."

Fauci testified to the Senate in May 2021 that NIH did not fund gain-of-function research at WIV at all, despite the sub-grant to EcoHealth Alliance. Tabak was forced to correct that testimony in October 2021, informing Oversight Committee Ranking Member James Comer of Kentucky that EcoHealth had failed to notify the agency about its research activities and their results.

Although the scientists were warned of the likelihood that covid was engineered in a lab, they went on to write a paper -- likely at Collins' and Fauci's insistence -- that completely suppressed any mention a laboratory creation as a possible origin for the virus.

"It was on this conference call that Drs. Fauci and Collins were first warned that COVID-19 may have leaked from the WIV and, further, may have been intentionally genetically manipulated," the Republicans' letter said.

The congressmen said that "it is unclear if either Dr. Fauci or Dr. Collins ever passed these warnings along to other government officials or if they simply ignored them."

The letter said other scientists participated in the call, four of whom wrote a paper titled, "The Proximal Origin of SARS-CoV-2" that they sent to Fauci and Collins three days after the call. The article did not argue that the virus originated in the lab.

The Republicans are now questioning whether the lab leak theory was dropped due to influence from Fauci and/or Collins.

"It is unclear what, if any, new evidence was presented or if the underlying science changed in that short period of time, but after speaking with Drs. Fauci and Collins, the authors abandoned their belief COVID-19 was the result of a laboratory leak," Comer and Jordan said, adding that they do not know whether Fauci or Collins edited the paper before it was published in Nature Medicine.

Project Veritas also released some documents from the military think-tank DARPA indicating that Wuhan was engaging in gain-of-function research.

The documents in question stem from a report at the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, better known as DARPA, which were hidden in a top secret shared drive.

DARPA is an agency under the U.S. Department of Defense in charge of facilitating research in technology with potential military applications.

Project Veritas has obtained a separate report to the Inspector General of the Department of Defense written by U.S. Marine Corp Major, Joseph Murphy, a former DARPA Fellow.

The report states that EcoHealth Alliance approached DARPA in March 2018, seeking funding to conduct gain of function research of bat borne coronaviruses. The proposal, named Project Defuse, was rejected by DARPA over safety concerns and the notion that it violates the basis gain of function research moratorium.

According to the documents, NIAID, under the direction of Dr. Fauci, went ahead with the research in Wuhan, China and at several sites across the U.S.

Dr. Fauci has repeatedly maintained, under oath, that the NIH and NAIAD have not been involved in gain of function research with the EcoHealth Alliance program. But according to the documents obtained by Project Veritas which outline why EcoHealth Alliance's proposal was rejected, DARPA certainly classified the research as gain of function.

"The proposal does not mention or assess potential risks of Gain of Function (GoF) research," a direct quote from the DARPA rejection letter.

In other words, the research being done is GoF but EcoHealth is not being frank about that and is not being open about the potential risks of the research.

Like releasing a plague upon the world. As a for-instance.

Below, neoliberal hyperpartisan drip Ryan Grim -- a perfectly-named dour apparatchik for the leftwing establishment-- is forced to admit his precious leftwing bureaucratic Deep State is lying and his precious Democrats are covering it up. Worth the watch.

know it was central) involvement of players like Daszak and EHA, a "lab leak" or Gain-of-Function source was more than possible.

Then the press and the government and everyone else immediately went down the "lab leak is not possible" road. Yet there was this document. It wasn't proof by any means, but it showed that these guys really wanted to do **exactly** the things that could lead to SARS-CoV-2, in the place where the outbreak happened. It is a hugely troubling piece of circumstantial evidence. And not one person mentioned the existence of this letter or other DARPA findings. No one, anywhere. Both the Fauci emails and the original proposal from EcoHealth to DARPA came out last summer. The only new thing here is the letter to the IG summarizing all of the fuckery.

I don't see how Fauci ends up in prison, here, honestly, short of a revolution; a lot of very well connected DC people were involved on this on the medical side (again - remember Rosenstein's sister?), and if these are offenses that end in a rope.

I think they're more likely to double down, crack down on the opposition, false flag some attacks and kick off a low intensity conflict, etc, rather than allow accountability for this. This is not unrelated to the EU's new push to scrap the Nuremburg codes.

It is a method and practice to understand physical truths about the world around us, from sub atomic particles to viruses to distant galaxies, and the way the universe works.

100 people or scientists can say something is "true", but if one person can prove that it is false, the one person is right. There should not be "consensus", this isn't a political election. That is a bullshit cover story to lend legitimacy to the research and get funding. Noble cause: vaccinate the cave bats so they develop immunity to coronaviruses and make future SARS like illnesses less likely to emerge from the bat caves. To do this they modified SARS to be more specific to the human ACE receptor, made the spike protein a pro inflammatory toxin and aerosolized the virus transmission. After this was completed, THEN they would make it work in bats. Oopsie, it escaped.

My guess is that their intentions were more or less noble (working on cures, trying to understand infections etc) but their work was shoddy, stupid, and without wisdom or restraint like so many of the horrors of previous science.

Look, the Tuskegee Experiment was noble at first, if evil in implementation. They were trying to understand and gain information about Syphilis. It was the lack of ethical foundation, the willingness to use human subjects, and the continuation of the program long after it was realized to be of little use and horrific nature that was the problem.

like so many of the horrors of previous science.

The best case scenario is well intentioned idiocy. However, the best argument in favor of intentionality that is My My what a fantastic stroke of luck for China, the Democrats and Pharma. Also, the people at the top new that lab leaked like a sieve. A leak was inevitable.

That said, its not impossible that the people that run our government so abysmally, organized an amazingly well coordinated political response in a snap of the fingers. Cause they do that all the fcukin' time.

As sure as I'm sitting here right now, we both agreed the op, if such a crazy outlandish thing were to occur, would happen in Spring of 2020.

lab. That is the article that was called "The Proximal Origin of the Sars Co-V-2 Virus."

They write the article, then send the draft to Fauci for his edits and approval. Then the article is published in the journal Nature. Fauci's name does not appear in the article.

Then Fauci goes on t.v. and tells the public that the virus arose naturally and was not created in a lab, and he cites the Nature article as proof, failing to mention that he had directed the article be written, and had then edited and approved it for publication. Fauci also fails to mention that the article contradicts what the scientists who wrote it had told him at the Feb. 2020 meeting (i.e. that they believed the virus was lab made).

After Nature published the article, Fauci approved government grants of $20 million dollars to the scientists who wrote the article.

Money is a factor, and if pressed they'll say they did it for money (if you somehow trap them into not saying they did it for the public good). Money, however, is not **the** factor. It is not the prime mover.

Power is the prime mover. Manipulation. Control. Power, both institutional and personal. These things are much more important. An effective therapeutic would have made this a nothingburger from the start and they would not have been able to convert what this is - an enhanced virus that leaked out of a bioweapons lab that was thankfully not a doomsday scenario that was dangerous but not existentially dangerous - into what it became: the end of the world as we know, with the new technocratic world that replaces it to be run by them and men like them.

Everything else - the money, the celebrity, etc. - is secondary.

The response to the pandemic was over the top, but only in hindsight. At first, not that much was known, so the rush to produce ventilators and move hospital ships to New York and all that was probably warranted. Two weeks to slow the spread? Okay, the purpose there was to buy time so that therapeutics could catch up. That was all not really political -- it was everybody in a climate of limited information struggling to do the right thing. I don't fault anybody for that month or two in early 2020.

But then the Left fell in love with the power. They used the pandemic to decide who was essential and who wasn't, what businesses could be open and what couldn't, which funerals were banned and which ones were causes for celebration, and that BLM riots were a COVID-free zone. And they decided that mail-in ballots would enable massive voter fraud. I don't think any of that was planned. It was just craven people taking advantage.

But if the vaccine is a therapeutic it should have to compete against the capabilities of other known therapeutics, and we know that if it is labeled as a therapeutic the known side effects would already have it off the market. That is the irony. It does help you if you get sick. But there are other things that are less deadly that would help you just as well.

@Joe Mannix, that's part 2 of my rant at 422. Remember the 2 weeks to slow the spread was to "flatten the curve" to give therapies time to be studied? At some point, it became clear to those who were enjoying their power that if there were effective therapies (HCQ being the first up), their power would be diminished, and they desperately needed to keep the lockdown going through the elections. So research into therapeutics dried up and they ridiculed anyone who promoted treatment, even to the point of having governors and medical boards ban medications. That effort was always about maintaining power, and is to this day.

There's some of that "reasoning" in the first doc dump from the Republican investigation that Ace mentioned. Here's a juicy tidbit:

An accusation that nCoV-2019 might have been engineered and released into the environment by humans (accidental or intentional) would need to be supported by strong data, beyond a reasonable doubt. It is good that this possibility was discussed in detail with a team of experts. However, further debate about such accusations would unnecessarily distract top researchers from their active duties and do unnecessary harm to science in general and science in China in particular.

The money is a part of it, but another part is madness. The government - any government - is very good at monomania. When they move toward an idea - a COVID vaccine in this case - all other options vanish. It's tunnel vision. The vaccine was the hope and the way to get to the future. Nothing else could be considered. Indeed, in most of their minds, I suspect that the vaccine is the only thing that exists. Therapeutics don't exist. Why? Because they're not a vaccine, and a vaccine is the only thing we're working toward.

Logically it works, and this was talked about in some sites in 2019 as a possible vaccine for "flu viruses". However the spike is not just an antigen target, it is apparently what creates the clotting and other auto-immune responses.

569 The existence of a furin cleavage site, which enables the virus to become more transmissible, has been pointed to by several proponents of the lab leak theory

Well, that's one way to whitewash things.

The issue isn't that it just has a furin cleave site, the issue is that the site is two proteins, each of which can be coded for 6 different ways

So there's a 1/36 chance of any given coding. And the coding that Sars-Cov-2 has just happens to be the 1 in 36 version that is the lab standard for adding a furin cleavage site.

There's a less than 3% chance of getting that coding in a natural mutation, and a greater than 99% chance of getting that coding when it's added in the lab.
